Nevertheless there was hasty indictment of Milam and Bryant, and Gov. Hugh White assigned a special prosecutor to help bring them to book. But he and the district attorney were unable to make a strong case in evidence, although the accused men had admitted taking the Till boy from his uncle's home in the early hours of Aug. 28.

The defense did find three expert witnesses who testified that the body could not have been that of the Till boy because it had been in the river for several days before he was abducted.

J. A. Shaw, foreman of the Jury, said that identification of the body was the deciding factor in the deliberation of one hour and seven minutes that preceded the verdict, on the third ballot, of not guilty.

A debt of one hour's sleep will be collected tonight by residents of the St. Louis metropolitan area and other localities. Daylight saving time ends officially at 2 a.m. tomorrow in most cities.

and television programs will be heard and seen an hour earlier than their present schedules.

There will be other complications for airlines, railroads and intercity bus lines in arranging their schedules, but hard-pressed mothers will find it a bit easier to get children off to bed now that darkness will be arriving an hour earlier.

It may also be easier to get the head of the household to bed earlier if he has the habit of frequenting taverns until closing time. These establishments have been open until 2:30 a.m. weekdays and until 1 a.m. Sundays because the State of Missouri, which governs the closing hour, has remained on standard time. They must close an hour earlier after tomorrow.

Provisional President Promises to Defend Democracy, Liberty -Clashes in Rosario, Buenos Aires.

By BRUCE HENDERSON By BRUCE HENDERSON
BUENOS AIRES, Sept. 24
(AP) — Provisional President

Peron in Buenos Aires and Rosario.

The first major clash since the revolution which toppled Peron's dictatorship occurred in Rosario, 170 miles northwest of Buenos Aires.

Reports from Rosario said-dichard Peronistas fought in the streets with revolutionary army troops in a wave of disorders last night and early today.

Tear Gas Bombs.

Planes of the new anti-Peron government poured tear gas bombs on several hundred massed Peronistas, mostly workers, and tank-supported troops bore down on the hold-outs. Several persons were reported killed, many were wounded and many rioters were arrested before the fighting ended.

Moving swiftly to clamp down on the disorders, the Lonardi government's First Army Command warned that anyone seen on the streets after 8 p.m. would be "shot on sight." The army sent reinforcements to Rosario.

Peronista remnants also held

Peronista remnants also held a demonstration last night in Avellaneda, an industrial suburb of Buenos Aires. Police fired several shots and several demonstrators were wounded before the group was dispersed. The disorders were denounced by the Union of White Collar Workers. The union said the outbreaks were sparked by organs of the General Confederation of Labor (CGT), which was a main source of Peron's strength.

The 59-year-old Lonardi, who as a dissident major general led the revolution that ousted Peron, was installed as provisional president yesterday before a crowd in Plaza de Mayo, in central Buenos Aires. Observers said the throng which cheered and sang to celebrate the new government was larger than any gathering ever assembled by Peron's labor-led supporters to honor the dictator.

Friendly Letter.

In line with the soft words policy of the Kremlin in recent months, Bulganin's note was friendly in tone. He said he was "inspired by the sincere desire" to reach agreement on the disarmament issue.

Bulganin's remarks held open the possibility that the Soviet Union now may be genuinely interested in negotiating an agreement on a much broader disarmament program.

Near the start of his letter Bulganin complained that Russia and other members of a U.N. disarmament subcommittee which is studying the Eisenhower plan and other proposals have been unable to determine the United States position.

Dealing with the President's plan, Bulganin said that "in principle, we have no objections" to the idea of exchanging blueprints of military establishments. He expressed the opinion that "at a definite stage the exchange of such information between states is necessary." But he added:

"It would be better, however, if such information concerning armaments were submitted by all states, and not only by the United States and the U.S.S.R., to the international organ of control and inspection, concerning the creation of which we should reach an agreement."

On Aerial Inspection, In cold-shouldering Mr. Eisenhower's aerial inspection, In cold-shouldering Mr. Eisenhower's aerial inspection proposal, Bulganin told the President: "Let us be frank to the end."

He added that the United States "heads all military groupings which exist in the East apd in the West," and has troops stationed around the world.

"Under the se conditions," Bulganin said, "the Soviet Union has united militarily with several allied states."

Then he said that because of those circumstances aerial pho-

Finally, it is impossible not to stop and think about what would happen if we occupy ourselves with the questions of aerial photography and the exchange of military, information without taking effective measures for reduction of armaments and prohibition of atomic weapons.

I have apprehensions which I cannot help but share with you. Would not such a situation lead to the weakening of vigilance toward the still existing threat of violation of the peace generated by the arms race?

My remarks do not at all mean that we cannot achieve an agreement on important aspects of the disarmament problem. I would like to call your attention to the fact that on very substantial aspects of this problem our position has become so close to each others that we would be able to reach a definite agreement.

Levels of Armed Forces.

Let us take such a question as the establishment of levels of armed forces for the great powers.

It is generally recognized that

It is generally recognized that this is a question of great importance. Originally, the idea of establishing levels to which armed forces of the Big Five should be reduced, as is known, was put forth by your Government together with the governments of Great Britain and France in 1932. In the interest of achieving general agreement of achieving general agreement of achieving general agreement.

meats of Great Britain and France in 1952. In the interest of achieving general agreement on this matter, which is so important for the problem of disarmament, we decided to adopt this joint proposal of the United States, England and France, as a basis for discussion. Consequently we have a common point of view on this question. It is very important for us to arrive at agreement on this point.

On the question of atomic weapons, we must remember that at the present, when the greatest armies of the world have at their disposal such means of mass destruction as atomic and hydrogen weapons, it is impossible, of course, to talk about disarmament without touching on this important subject. Therefore, we have always attached paramount importance to the problem of prohibition of atomic weapons. In the discussion of this problem, one of the substantial subjects of disagreement was the question of dates when the prohibition against the use of atomic weapons would go into force. In our desire to bring the opposition positions closer and to thereby facilitate and expedite the achievement of agreement on this subject, we agreed to accept the dates for putting into force the prohibition on the use of atomic weapons which were proposed by the representatives of England and France in the subcommittee of the U.N. commission on disarmament in London in

New York Times disclosed the content. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles and Molotov talked privately together here after Molotov concluded his opening address to the Assembly yesterday, and seemingly reached agreement on publication of the entire document. Later it was circulated here.

At United States delegation headquarters, it was said the Bulganin letter avoided accepting the Eisenhower plan but did not reject it. It was emphasized that Bulganin had courteously admitted the proposal was a sincere report to ease international tensions, but still insisted it would be a second to be ease international tensions, still insisted it would whiteve disarmament.

Molotov, in his speech yesterday, proclaimed Russian aspirations for world peace, the hope of ending the armaments race, and, in a formal resolution he called on the Assembly to salute "with satisfaction" the efforts made by states to promote international harmony.

Molotov did say he would study the Eisenhower plan to see to what extent it would contribute to arms reduction and a bar on atomic weapons. Meantime he called on the West to reduce its armed camps and give up foreign military bases.

The Russians, he said, are turning back to Finland the military base in the Porkkala area. He said that at the end of the year there will be no Soviet military bases on the territories of other states and the Soviet Union has proceeded from 'words to deeds."

He also pledged he would investigate plans for producing more oil "in Argentina and would stop negotiations begun under Peron with the Standard Oil Co. of California for oil prospecting in southern Argentina. A contract with the oil company, not approved by Congress, has aroused strong resentment in many quarters which want the prospecting done by YPF, the Argentine government's oil company.

That possibility was indicated by a speech which Secretary of State John Foster Dulles made in the United Nation General Assembly earlier this week. Dulles said he hoped the Assembly would make clear the sentiments of the U.N. in favor of the step which Mr. Eisenhower had called for.

Text of Bulganin Letter to Eisenhower disarmament subcommittee. In the course of this study several questions have arisen about which I would like to express to you my thoughts. DENVER, Sept. 24 (AP).

Pollowing is the text of the letter sent to President Eisenhouser by Premier Bulganin of the Soutet Union:

DEAR MR. PRESIDENT:

I feel I must sincerely and trankly exchange opinions with you on a subject which at the present time has acquired particular importance. I have in mind the question which is being discussed now by our representatives in the subcommittee of the U.N. Disarmament Commission.

In the course of our memora-ment Commission.

In the course of our memorable meetings in Geneva we agreed to work jointly for elaboration of an acceptable system of disarmament. When we approved directives to our minister of foreign affairs on this score. I thought a great deal had been accomplished. Now the representatives of our countries, guided by these directives and taking into account in their work the opinions and proposals put forth by the heads of the four governments in Geneva, can and must achieve definite progress.

I and my colleagues thought can and must achieve definite progress.

I and my colleagues thought that even at the very beginning of their work our representatives would be able to reach general agreement on those basic questions on which our viewpoints either coincided or had already appreciably approached each other. I have in mind first of all the question of the levels of armed forces of the five great powers, the question of dates for introducing into force the prohibition of atomic weapons, and the question of international control.

In this manner there would be created a solid foundation for further work during which it would be possible to make more precise all the details of the necessary agreements concerning the working out of an acceptable system of disarmament.

Wants U.S. Views.

Wants U.S. Views. Wants U.S. Views.
However, the first weeks of the work of the subcommittee so far have not yet produced those results for which you and I were fully entitled to hope, and I must frankly say that the delay is occasioned to a considerable degree by the fact that the members of the subcommittee so far de not know

siderable degree by the fact that the members of the subcommittee so far do not know the position of the representative of the United States with regard to those provisions which we had all the grounds to consider as agreed.

As is known, the representative of the United States completely put aside the questions of reduction of the armed forces, of the armament and prohibition of atomic weapons, having expressed the desire to discuss first of all and mainly your proposal concerning the exchange of military information betwreen the U.S.S.R. and the U.S.A. as well as of the mutual exchange of aerial photography of the territories of both countries. In this manner the impression is left that the entire problem of disarmament is below confined by the to these tire problem of disarmament is being confined by him to these proposals.

I think to put the question in this manner would not satisfy the aspiration of peoples, even though I fully recognize the importance of the proposals introduced by you in Geneva.

However, since I and my col-considerations.

On 'Dead Center.'

We feel that the main problem for us is to use further efforts to look for ways which would permit us to move the problem of disarmament away from dead center, which problem has vital importance for from dead center, which problem has vital importance for the peoples of the U.S.S.R. and the U.S.A. as well as of peoples of the entire world.

In connection with this allow me to touch upon the proposals put forward by you at Geneva.
We regard these proposals as testimony of your sincere deare testimony of your sincere desire to find a way to settle the im-portant problem of the inter-national control and inspection and to contribute personally to general efforts for the normaligeneral efforts for the normalization of international relations.

Upon our return from Geneva we with all carefulness have studied your proposal of July 21 which was introduced on Aug. 31 by Mr. Stassen into the

I think that at a definite stage the exchange of such information between states is necessary. It would be better, however, if such information concerning armaments were submitted by all states, and not only by the U.S. and the U.S. R., to the international organ of control and inspection, concerning the creation of which we should reach an agreement.

'In order to avoid misunderagreement.
'In order to avoid misunderstandings, it is self-evident that information on all kinds of armaments, conventional as well as nuclear, must be submitted in order to avoid misunderstanding. If these considerations are valid, we should carefully discuss exactly when this full information on armaments of states should be presented and first of all information concerning the armaments of great powers.

It is self-evident that the sub-ing the armaments of great powers.

It is self-evident that the submission of the above mentioned information to an international control organ would become significant only if agreement is achieved on the reduction of armaments and on taking measures for the prohibition of atomic weapons.

It seems to me that the problem of the creation of an international control organ which would satisfy the requirements of the problems of disarmament would be considered in indissoluble unity with decisions for putting into effect a plan for gradual disarmament. At the same time it is necessary to keep sight of the fact that achievement of a really valuable exchange of military information will become really effective to the degree that mutual trust among states is strengthened. Now I would also like to express my opinion about the problem of aerial photography.

I do not doubt that when a supplement of a real photography.

I do not doubt that when you introduced your proposal for photographing from the air the territories of our two countries, you were guided by a legitimate desire to cre-ate confidence that neither of our two countries would be subjected to attack by the

However, let us be frank to the end. Under present international conditions both our countries are not acting singly. The United States of America, as is known, heads all military groupings which exist in the West and in the East, and what is more their armed forces are stationed not only on American territory; they are also stationed in England, West Germany, Italy, France, Spain, North Africa, Greece, Turkey, in several countries of the Near and Middle East, in Japan, on Taiwan, in the Philippines, etc.

on Taiwan, in the Philippines, etc.

To this should be added the fact that the armed forces of several states are organically connected with the military forces of the United States through inclusion under a single command.

Under these conditions, the Soviet Union on its side has united militarily with several ailled states.

united militarily with several ailled states.

It is impossible not to see that the proposal introduced by you completely omits from consideration armed forces and military installations which are outside the area of the United States and the Soviet Union.

And yet it is perfectly self-evident that aerial photographing should also be extended to all armed forces and military installations located on the territories of those other states.

mauring security of states and successful accomplishment of disarmament.

Bar on A-Bembs.

This conclusion is suggested by the fact that your proposal, unfortunately, does not mention the necessity for reduction of armaments and prohibition of armaments and prohibition of armaments and prohibition of atomic weapons.

It is therefore satural that people should ask more and more often what the proposal for serial photography and the collecting of such information would really do to end the arms race. If such a proposal does not promote the ending of the arms race, then it means that it does not remove the threat of a new war.

It does not lighten the burden which the peoples are bearing in connection with this arms race. Would such a proposal satisfy the expectations of our peoples and that of all countries?

Finally, it is impossible not stream which the proposal satisfy the expectations of our peoples and that of all countries?

It also seems expedient for us to reach agreement at this time on putting into effect severel measures designed to prevent sudden attack by one state or another. We feel that this measure would be in accord with the interests of maintaining peace and security of nations and in this respect it would be possible to reach agreement also concerning the form of control suitable to the above-mentioned problem.

You, Mr. President, as a military man, know from your own experience that the modern war requires drawing into military action armies of many millions and an enormous quantity of technical combat equipment. In this connection great importance has now been acquired by the definite locations where concentrations of large military groups can take place and whose armaments would include all this technical combat equipment. The system of control proposed by us, namely the creation of control posts in large ports, at railroad functions, on automobile highways and at airfields, is designed to prevent dangerous concentrations of troops and combat equipment on large scale and thereby remove the possibility of sudden attack by one countragainst another. Establishment of such posts would be an important step toward relaxation of international tension and the establishment of trust among states.

In my opinion our proposal concerning control posts has the advantage that it provides a definite guarantee against a sudden attack by one state against another.

against a sudden attack by one state against another.

I think you will agree that the proposals introduced by usconcerning levels of armed-forces, the dates for coming into effect of the prohibition of nuclear weapons and for the establishment of control posts can promote the reduction of tension in the international relations and strengthening of peace. I do not see, therefore, any reasons why we couldn't arrange to reach agreement on these questions. Such joint decisions of the four powers would have tremendous importance because they would put into the hearts of millions of people the assurance that the disarmament is fully realizable and that real steps are being taken in this direction. An agreement on these questions would open the way towards solution of other questions which concern the problem of disarmament. It would encourage the strengthening of that atmosphere of cooperation and mutual understanding which we initiated at problem of disarmament. It would encourage the strengthening of that atmosphere of cooperation and mutual understanding which we initiated at Geneva, and it would create favorable conditions to put into practice a broader program of disarmament and control over this disarmament.

In presenting ideas to you, Mr. President, I am inspired by the sincere desire to achieve through a frank exchange of opinions on the problem of disarmament better mutual understanding which may facilitate reaching agreed decisions on this most important problem.

Inasmuch as the solution of these questions depends mainly on the four great powers who participated in the Geneva conference, I have taken the liberty of sending copies of this letter to Mr. Eden and Mr. Faurage.

I hope soon to receive your ideas on the questions touched upon in this letter. With sincere respect, N. BULGANIN

NEED TO PROVIDE ARMY TO BOOST JOBS FOR THOSE MONTHLY DRAFT OVER 45 CITED CALL BY 3000

10,000,000 More Must Be Absorbed by 1975, Interstate Conference Is Told.

American business and industry must be prepared to absorb least 10,000,000 additional workers 45 years of age and older by 1975 to keep pace with present trends in the aging of the population and in labor force participation, Charles E. Odell, chief of the division of counseling, selective placement and testing of the Bureau of Employment Security, said to-

ferson, Odell said: "The alternative to this would appear to be a lowering of the retirement age, a raising of pension and retirement benefits, and a tremendous over-all in-crease in costs in the form of taxation and other forms of taxation and other forms of deductions for income maintanance of larger and larger numbers of men and women involuntarily removed from a productive role in our economy."

Pointing out that as the life expectancy of the American people is increasing, work life expectancy is declining, Odell said the numbers of men and women 45 years old and over increased from 13,500,000 in 1950 and is expected to reach 64,000,000 expected to reach 64,000,000

Two out of three employment service restrict employment on the basis of age for specific reasons, Odell said. They cite: Higher pension, insurance and men's compensation costs; poor er productivity and overall per formance; less adaptability change, training and supervis-ion; lower volume and quality ion; lower volume and quality of work; poorer safety records; inability to get along with others; higher absenteeism and lost time through illness.

Recalling that President Eisenhower and Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell called special attention to employment of attention to employment of middleaged and older workers in a Labor day message, Odell outlined immediate plans of the Department of Labor in attack-ing the nuchlem

These include:

"Many of the middle-aged and older workers are being displaced as a result of rapid advances in industrial technology, harnessing of new sources of energy and introduction of new methods of production new methods of production of control," Odell said, "They will require additional training in order to compete in a dynamic economy."

wocational problems of younger workers were dis-cussed at the closing day's ses-sion of the three-day confer-ence by Joseph W. Beach, di-rector of the North Carolina Employment Security Commis-

"Never before in the peace-time history of our nation has its youth been confronted with time history of our nation has its youth been confronted with so many job opportunities." he said, "but the very profusion of opportunities can only add to a young worker's confusion when he is trying to select a suitable life-time occupation." Increasing attention should be given to the problem of vacational guidance by the Employment Security service as well as other agencies, he said, because the problem will become more acute as the economic and industrial pattern increases in complexity.

Truman, who came here yesterday to attend the annual convention of the Thirty-Fifth Division Association, told reporters that he would campaign actively for the Democratic presidential nominee if the party's national committee wants him to do so.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Local 688's Program the Editor of the Post-Dis

Reader Stuart Thompson's recent letter implies that the community stewards program of Teamsters' Lo-cal 688 establishes an unnecessary Intermediary between the citizen and

The essence of democracy is the citizen's right and ability to determine the course his government will take. Unfortunately, the individual citizen's direct approach to his elected officials has been tempered by the growth of all kinds of pressure groups, normally representing special interests, which exercise considerable influence upon the course of government.

sure groups, normally representing special interests, which exercise considerable influence upon the course of government.

The working man, or average citizen, is apt to be bewildered by the many pressure groups, apt to feel helpiess, and ultimately to become complacent or cynical about his own role in a democracy. After all, he knows that business interests are represented by the Chamber of Commerce, doctors by the A.M.A., veterans by the American Legion and other groups. Citizens who oppose expressway routes, or those determined to obtain improved sewage and sanitation, form associations.

The answer to this increasing government by pressure is to extend the democratic process by educating and involving more and more people in the day-to-day workings of their government, and providing them with a means through which they may voice their beliefs and obtain what they want and deserve—better street lighting, improved police protection, better playgrounds, safer streets, etc. This is what we are attempting to do.

Therefore, twice each year our union suspends its regular shop meetings and the members meet at the neighborhood level to discuss community problems, This is a return to the historic "town meeting" principle. The needs expressed at these meetings are followed up day-to-day through our community stewards on a community grievance basis. Encouraged by the support of their fellow members, our people in turn discuss their needs directly with their aldermen or other elected of-ficials. The union is not an intermediary for them, nor does it dictate their needs to them. The union's role is solely to encourage our working members to use their rights as citizens in a democracy.

James M. Mead's criticism may be appropriately discounted for the fact that the departing afely discounted for the fact that the departing Federal Trade Commissioner is a Democrat in a Republican administration. After the discount-ing, there is still plenty of sound sense in his affirmation that the FTC and other regulatory agencies should be kept above the influence of

Mr. Mead's remarks should be all the more effective because they are not turned to partisan account. A specific object of his criticism is the which makes the FTC chairman removable at the will of the President, and gives the chairman all executive powers of the commission, including the authority to hire and fire person

This, plan was adopted five years ago in the Truman Administration. It was recommended by the Commission on Organization of the Executive Branch of the Government, to which President Truman appointed former Republican President Herbert Hoover as chairman. Many excellent reforms were brought about as a result of work of that commission, but some of the changes in the workings of the regulatory commissions have proved less desirable in practice than they appeared in theory.

Mr. Mead, who is completing seven years of useful service on the FTC, is in an unusually good position to know what he is talking about. was chairman of the commission when the new plan went into effect, and he has served under both Democratic and Republican regimes.

"This plan impairs the independence of the commission," Mr. Mead says, "because it in-creases substantially the power and influence of President over the operations of the commission." Of the provision giving the chairman executive powers he says: "The power should be placed in the hands of the commissioners and not one man.

Here Mr. Mead brings up the further undesirable feature of one-man rule of the regulatory commissions, which becomes at least a possibility the chairman enjoys powers with which the authority of his fellow-commissioners is not commensurate. When one-man rule is allied with presidential influence over that one man, the independence of a regulatory commission becomes tenuous indeed.

The reorganizations proposed by the first Hoover commission and adopted by Congress in the Truman Administration enabled the President to designate the chairman also of the Se curities and Exchange commission and the Federal Trade Commission, and vested executive powers in the chairmen of those agencies and the Civil Aeronautics Board.

As we said a month ago, these changes could well be re-examined. Disturbing indications of executive interference with the SEC, as well as with the non-regulatory but independent Atomic Energy Commission and Tennessee Valley Authority, developed during the late unlamented Dixon-Yates investigation. Tendencies for chairmen to withhold essential information from their fellow-members, or to act as lone wolves, ap peared simultaneously in the AEC, the SEC and the TVA.

Mr. Mead's suggestions about the FTC provide a good starting point for a general reappraisal to insure that the regulatory agencies, and the other independent agencies which are arms of Congress rather than of the Executive. remain independent, and that the boards which govern them are administered by all their members co-equally.

More Sweat Than Ever?

For ages nobody has argued that it is not by the sweat of his brow that man earns his bread But recent years have brought more and more news of a determination to have some changes

There were, for example, those pictures of pretty stenographers in pretty bathing suits around the swimming pool of a new Texas office building. And now there is the announcement that an insurance company is building its new office not in crowded Hartford, but in a 268acre Connecticut pasture.

The establishment is to embrace a beauty shop for the girls, valeteria for the men, lounges, library, out-door eating facilities, bowling alleys, tennis courts-in fact just about everything listed in the advertising of modern luxury liners. And no more traffic jams on the way to and from the job.

But keep your fingers crossed. It has not been proved that the day's work can be made to seem less long by having, just outside the window, a swimming pool or golf course for use after hours. Nor is it a certainty that ledgers and figures will seem more attractive when a mere lifting of the eyes will reveal undulating meadows and gliding skylarks. Will glimpses of sun-drenched courts through invisible walls of glass make a man more content to be at his desk than would a view of smog-stained brick?

Maybe a "dream office" will make no difference in the incidence of gossip, annoyance, bore-dom, discontent and the other ingredients of that bread-winning sweat of the brow. But how many of us would like to make the test!

Amnesty in Russia

The amnesty announced in Moscow this week for former collaborators with Russia's enemies could be a significant indication of change in the Communist regime-or it could prove to be just an enormous flimflam. How it works out will be keenly observed by other nations.

It has long been the theory of George Kennan one of the best known American students of Rusthat the Kremlin could not continue indefinitely the tough policies directed by Stalin against the Russian people as well as against foreign states. Every dictatorship in history, Kennan argued, eventually was compelled normalize its foreign relations and to make its peace with its own citizens. Harsh restrictions had to be relaxed, certain rights had to be re spected and living standards had to be improved command respect and loyalty.

Geneva, the wooing of Tito and the Finns, the exchange of farm delegations and atomic infor mation, and similar gestures may be construed as steps toward more normal relations with other governments. In a limited sense, the am nesty may be considered part of this process in view of the Kremlin's discussion with West German Chancellor Adenauer of the return of Russian refugees now in Germany as displaced persons. Certainly these would not go home again-and the Germans could not be expected to send them home-if such a return would mean sentencing to Siberian labor camps or

It is estimated, however, that by far the largest number covered by the amnesty, which was formally proclaimed by the Presidium of the Supreme Soviet, are in Russian prisons or work camps. Have these received a genuine pardon?

Is real freedom of movement to be restored

Some such Russian prisoners have been freed some such Russian prisoners have been rich-in the past on the expiration of their court-im-posed sentences; but they have nevertheless been forced to remain in the vicinity of the prison camps and to labor in mines, lumber camps and new industrial centers as before. Will the new amnesty, in the same way, prove to be but a matter of words without substantial change in the life of its beneficiaries?

Not a Wheel Turned

It is now three months since the County Council authorized the start of a parcel-by-parcel reassessment of real estate. Citizens who rightly looked upon this scientific reassessment as the best long-term solution of the county's tax valuation problem will be shocked to learn that not a wheel has turned to put the Council's decision

Legal doubts about the county's authority to hire outside experts to do the job, as authorized by the Council, are given as the excuse for delay in execution of the Council's decision. But the history of the whole tax assessment problem raises a question whether the reason for delay is really legal, or something else.

County Assessor Deuser, whose failure to keep the tax assessments in step with real values created the problem in the first place, now says he wants to take charge of the reassessment. Is somebody in the courthouse kindly blocking the Council's decision to hire outside experts in order to create a nice piece of patronage and a nice opportunity for political favoritism?

The Council committee which made an exhaustive study of the tax crisis last spring decided to hire experts for good reasons. As the committee said in its report, the Assessor already has a formidable work-load, there is no extra working space in the courthouse, and "the Assessor would have a most difficult time employing the additional specially trained and qualified personnel" required for a truly scientific, truly nonpolitical reassessment.

To put it bluntly, the County Council obviously considered the Assessor's office unfit to do the kind, of job the county needs. Its reasons were good then and they are still good. So any maneuvers which result in handing the job to the Assessor after all will be highly suspicious, to say the least.

The Council's plan for an independent reassessment by outside experts was originally pre-sented in an effort to forestall the state's order for a blanket increase of assessments. The state refused to be diverted-wisely, as it turns outand the blanket increase is now being put into effect, with the result that inequities that existed in the assessment structure are still there and in some cases compounded.

A parcel-by-parcel reassessment is therefore urgently needed than ever. Such a reassess ment-comprehensive, scientific, nonpolitical-is the only way of bringing the entire valuation structure into line with reality and equity.

Is County Supervisor Matthews in favor of such a reassessment, or not? And if not, why not?

For Opening U.N. Doors

The new president of the U.N. General Assembly, Chile's Jose Maza, is tired of the way the Soviet Union and the United States have been keeping prospective members out of the international organization. Every nation willing to abide by the charter, he says, should be admitted. And if the U.S. and the U.S.S.R. continue the deadlock, he adds, it should be broken by revising the charter.

Senor Maza has no intention, he says, of forcing his view on the Assembly. But his statement is significant nevertheless as an expression of opinion from a representative of the less power ful member-nations-the more so because the Chilean was elected to the Assembly by an unprecedented unanimous vote.

Actually there are those in the United States, if not in the State Department, who feel the same way. With exceptions such as Red China's effort to "shoot its way in," they wonder what is gained by keeping the bars up against Switzerland, Ireland, Japan and Italy among others. Admittedly the Communist bloc would gain a few votes, but these would be more than offset by new anti-Communist votes.

More importantly, the U.N. would be strengthened since it would be brought closer to the ideal of a universal organization, a forum open to all nations for the peaceful discussion of possible conflicts, and a means of co-operation for is no argument. Since some of the non-member nations have been admitted to subsidiary organizations active in such fields as health and education, there is scant logic in excluding them from full membership.

It is easy enough to see how the stand-pat attitude developed as a reflection of really serious differences between the great powers. But the president of the Assembly is serving the United Nations-as a world organization-in inviting reconsideration by those who insist on keeping its doors locked

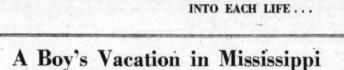

The Yankees Are Human

Nobody has ever established that the New York Yankees are not human and, so, subject to all the perils and vicissitudes of humanity-away from their Stadium. It would not be against Nature if Hank Bauer were struck by a hit-andrun driver, or a cornice fell on Phil Rizzuto or ome fever-producing germ took a fancy to Micky Mantle, or if Yogi Berra broke a leg on the basement stairs. Something might even happen to that voluble master-mind, Casey Stengel, even as accidents happen to other humans.

But nothing with unfortunate and long-lasting iences can happen to the Yankees on a baseball diamond. We were just about ready to pronounce this as a scientific law as they closed their grasp on another pennant. In baseball, the Yankees are Destiny's children; and the rest of the American League must be ready to admit that there is no point in resisting Destiny.

For months Marty Marion's Chicago White Sox were showing that pennants may still be available to "hitless wonders." The Cleveland Indians were demonstrating how, in the end, overpowering pitchers are bound to be overpowering. The Boston Red Sox were displaying how a spirited ball team-with a Ted Williams can come out of the ruck. But one by one they faded, and the Yankees emerged with the great lesson that there is nothing like habit.

The Yankees have almost nothing in common with the great teams of Ruth and Gehrig and "murderers' row" except the name on their shirts and the confidence which goes with that name. They are convinced that when the chips are down, the Yankees win. A year ago they stumbled and nobody can explain to them how or why. Now they have just finished proving that last year must have been a typographical error in the record book.

His mother had certain worries about the idea. After it was all over, she told reporters that she had warned the boy to get down on his knees and beg forgiveness if he happened to offend a white man in Mississippi.

seventh season. In both the artistic and financial departments it has been judged a success. Also, in approaching middle-age, much of the bloom and freshness of youth has been preserved.

All this was in the face of very unauspicious beginnings. The Muny Opera, as the huge outdoor theater is affectionately referred to through much of mid-America, was born in disaster. A flash flood swept through the theater that first night back in 1919 washing away all the scenery. But the show, "Robin Hood," went on anyway. Somehow that first six-week season never got off the ground. It ended with a deficit of $10,000.

In 1920 came a change. In the inter-

Peacocks and Broadswords BELOVED LADY, by Barbara Jefferis, (William Sloane Associates, 341 pgs., $3.95.)

Steam Auociata. 141 pgs., 33.75.)

The bitter, bloody and bewildering times of the War of the Roses have again furnished an historical novelist with rich material for tales of derring-do. With the crown of England changing heads with the agility of the pea under walnut shells at a village fair, and communications lagging far behind events, it was a wise man who knew where his loyalties might best lie.

The death of a kinsman brought John Paston several great houses in England's countryside, all of which had to be occupied quickly and defended against other claimants, some of whom had only recently seemed fast friends. shame and revulsion what had happened.

Face to face with horror, what does one say? That the law should move speedily and honestly, that the guilty be found, that justice be done? Yes, this much, surely, and yet that cannot be the end of it.

We in the United States do not believe in collective guilt. The people of Mississippi are not guilty of this crime: the South is not guilty; the United States is not guilty.

Two men, three men, however many were involved, they are the ones. They tortured this boy, they tore his flesh with barbed wire, they sent a bullet crashing through his brain and gave his body to the river.

which would bring him neither power nor pelf.

Unfortunately he couldn't afford to fire gentleman-bailiff Richard Calle because his services were invaluable. And neither beatings, solitary confinement in a dungeon nor priestly warnings of damnation could cool Margery's warmth for Richard. Indeed lawlessness and casual cruelty were the rule of the day in spite of much obeisance in the direction of the church and even a priest in residence in the great houses. Finally, pestilence and war took their toll of the Paston family, and in the end as was expected the lovers were left victorious. The boy from Chicago ended with a bullet in his brain, but the illness that ultimately killed him condemns Negroes to inferior homes, schools, and jobs, refuses them equality in death as in life. On this score the nation itself is sick, with an illness that in the North proclaims equality in word while denying it in deed and in the South denies it in both word and deed.

By his death Emmett Louis Till took racism out of the textbooks and editorials and showed it to the world in its true dimensions.

Borodin writes simply, directly. He is very humble, displays no regrets for his past actions, nor does he pretend to any after-the-fact knowledge or prophecy. He reveals a sincerity noteworthy for an autobiography.

The author does not picture the secret police as being vicious, as many have. At home, the Chekists are described as good family men. In their work, they are fanatics who consider themselves "weedkillers" for the Soviet regime.

Stengel, acting as giddy as the rawest recruit on the Yan-kee squad, out-shouted every member of his team at an impromptu dressing room celebration after the Yankees clinched the pennant last night with a 3-2 victory over the Boston Red Sox.

"Ford deserves to start the opening game and he's going to," Stengel announced. "And he'll be well rested." Ford, who leads the Yankee hurlers with 18 victories, probably will face Brooklyn's Don Newcombe.

"Team One of Greatest."

"This team is one of the greatest." Stengel said. "We'll take care of ourselves in the series. Now that the pennant is ours, we can rest up a few days and go into the series with a relaxed pitching staff."

The flag is the twenty-first to be won by a Yankee team.

Stengel's bruised and limping players drove to a story-book finish after trailing Cleveland by two games Sept. 13. It was the fifth of the 64-year-old Stengel's six Yankee pennants that he clinched on the final Friday of the campaign.

Going into the seventh Larsen had a 3-0 lead. Then three singles produced a Boston run and Stengel waved to the bullpen to bring in his ace.

Ford opened by walking Billy Klaus on a 3-2 pitch to load the bases as Ted Williams, with two earlier hits, stepped in, Williams fouled one off and the count reached 3-1. Then Williams whacked a ground ball to second baseman Billy Martin and a rally-killing double play was under way. Jackie Jensen tagged Ford for his twenty-sixth home run to open the eighth, but that was the last noise Boston made.

Cards Find Spahn Hits Homers, Too

By Jack Rice

Cardinal pitching today has its second poison-ivy laurel of whelmed by honors nobody wants, Manager Harry Walker still managed to find kind words. He spoke about the opposition's pitcher, of course. He discussed Warren Spahn

Milwaukee's left-handed pitcher. The Cardinals always talk out Spahn, and this year they've done less than usual long, therefore, on Spahn as a pitcher. He spoke of the man as a hitter.

"If Spahn had played outfield

as a hitter.

"If Spahn had played outfield all the time he'd have hit like Musial," Walker said. "He's got that good filp of the wrists, and good body action."

Hemers Win for Braves.
Spahn's ability to hit a baseball has been mentioned before, though he may treasure this as the prize compliment. He brought it on himself by hitting the fourth home run the Braves had against the Cardinals last night. It was a 4-2 victory for Spahn and for Milwaukee, and another bit of something for the 1955 Cardinals to be remembered by, as dimly as possible.

The Braves four home runs increased to 182 the number made off the Cardinal staff this year. Cincinnati's 1953 staff had been the National League's king of the gophers, with a total of 179 home runs yielded.

Tom Poholsky stood treat. Ed Mathews rallied the Cardinal staff to a tie with the 1953 Cincinnatis with a leadoff homer in the fourth inning. One out later, George Crowe of the ever-thoughtful Braves pushed the Cardinals past anything so commonplace as a tie, by homering to the right field

That Man Crowe Again.
Crowe was so interested in seeing Redbird pitching get a commanding lead in the matter that he homered again in the latter.

Catcher Dick Rand reported to the Cardinals from Houston, and advance word was that fin-ger injury would prevent his playing. He said it wasn't so, and played. This cost Spahn a shutout. Harry Elliott singled to lead off the ninth. Two strikeouts later, Rand homered.

St. Louis U. High and C.B.C. Teams Triumph

By Harold Tuthill A couple of schools which used to fight it out for the Prep League football championship and now are playing independently -St. Louis U. High and C.B.C.-scored convincing victories last night on the prep front.

The Junior Bills, held to a 1-7 tie by Southwest in their lirst game, ran up a surprising 19 points against Roosevelt, also of the Public High League, to treat their new coach, Gene Hart, to his first Blue and White victory, 39-0. C.B.C. now has a 2-0 record, while McBride's is 1-1.

Normandy, trailing, 7-6, after three quarters, defeated Brent-wood, 12-7, on Jack Leber's touchdown late in the game. Mel Sheehan's Vikings scored first on a 9-yard pass from Steve Lewis to Terry Pickel in the third quarter. Brentwood Steve Lewis to Terry Pickel in the third quarter. Brentwood went ahead when Spencer Staples took the kickoff after Pickel's touchdown and ran 73 yards around left end for the Eagles' tally. Staples then place-kicked the extra point which put Brentwood in front until the closing minutes.

Engineers! Scientists! WESTINGHOUSE ATOMIC POWER!

At the Geneva Conference on Atomic Power, world scientists agreed that Nuclear Reactors will provide the world's future source of energy. Help us develop this country's future source of power in our new plant on the outstirts of Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania.

MECANICAL ENGINEERS

MECHANICAL DESIGN: Many appealing problems in arrangements and gadgetry. Pressure vessel design in an entirely new field. Stress analysis with challenging opportunities in the field of combined me-

HEAT TRANSFER AND FLUID MECHANICS: Problems operating conditions for optimizing low cost nuclear power production. Highly analytical work involving steady state parametric studies, and analysis of power reactor transients. Extensive supporting experimental work.

FLUID SYSTEMS ENGINEERS

Designers of piping systems including valves, pumps, heat exchanges, ion exchange processes and other apparatus required in reactor plant design. This work includes thermal and fluid flow analysis of the systems involved including steady state and transient performance as well as system design.

ELECTRICAL AND CONTROL ENGINEERS

Development, design and application of control systems and apparatus for nuclear plant. This includes servo analysis, application of analogs computers, functional and operational analysis of mechanical and electrical power systems and the application of temperature, pressure, flow instruments, nuclear instruments, motor controllers, regulators, control panels and special electrical controls.

METALLURGISTS

PROCESS DEVELOPMENT: Challenging assignments in the development of nuclear reactor components and fuels. Development of complete manufacturing processes from the melting of alloys through final welding and machining. Metallurgical evaluation of materials with respect to radiation, corrosion, and mechanical stability.

APPLIED RESEARCH: Basic properties, crystal structures, and phase diagrams of new alloys must be investigated to solve meterials problems for power reactor development. Irradiation damage studies, corrosion investigations, and bonding problems represent the crux of the metallurgical problems.

NON DESTRUCTIVE TEST ENGINEERS: Development of non-destructive thods for inspection of critical parts of nuclear reactors.

Duties will also include purchase of equipment and establishing a non-destructive test laboratory.

STATISTICIANS: Alding development engineers in programing pro-posed experiments and in analyzing resulting data. Establishing manu-facturing tolerances and analytical limits for manufacturing drawings and specifications. Analyzing resulting manufacturing data for deter-mination of level of reactor performance. Degree in Metallurgy

· RADIO CHEMISTS

To perform and supervise analysis for fission products, transuranic nents, and other activities.

PHYSICISTS AND MATHEMATICIANS

Mathematicians for research in applied mathematics, numerical analysis and digital computing techniques relating to theoretical problems in the physics and engineering of nuclear power reactors. Physicists to plan and conduct a program of investigation, both theoretical and experimental, to continue to improve our technical position in reactor physics.

WESTINGHOUSE'S NEW Ph.D. FELLOWSHIP PROGRAM

In conjunction with the University of Pittsburgh, the program les outstanding graduate school candidates to attain their M.S. Ph.D. degrees while on full pay under the Westinghouse Atomic and Ph.D. degrees while o Power Fellowship Program.

Queer Doings In Belleville, Not Brooklyn

What happens when Dutchmen-St. Louis Cleveland High School variety - and those sprinkled in the lineup of the Belleville Maroons get together? Here's the answer: Fuses blow, lights go out, play is interrupted (naturally), and to boot, there was a unique finish. When a joker with a horn cut loose with a convincing blast, players on both teams headed for their dressing rooms. But they were herded back onto the Belleville Stadium turf with the official clock showing three seconds of play—time for one play from midfield.

It was a last ray of hope for Cleveland. Ray Cliffe's rugged Cleveland. Ray Cliffe's rugged charges had no alternative—they had to pass. But Bob Little's aerial was deflected and then intercepted by Belleville Tackle Ted Sinkewiz who rambled to the Cleveland 15 before being brought down. For Belleville, it was a play that protected a precious 12-6 victory, the Maroons' second in as many outing this season. And for Cleveland, it was a heart-tearing defeat, in its first 1955 start.

feat, in its first 1955 start.

Cleveland, showing plenty of heft and poise, promises to be rugged in the local Public High League off of last night's showing. Fullback Jim Miles, Quarterback Roger Lively and Halfback Bob Kramer particularly were outstanding for the Dutchmen, even in defeat.

down run. John Claiborne's conversion kick—a good one—was nullified by a penalty, and his next effort, from the 7-yard line, squarely struck the crossbar.

A fumble proved costly on the first play of the second quarter, Johnny Gain picking up Lively's bobble on the 20-yard line and hustling to the end zone. Cleveland smeared a Belleville pass play on the conversion attempt.

Belleville scored the winning six-pointer, again on a periodsix-pointer, again on a period-opening play, this time in the final canto. Charley Watland streaked around left end from the 16-yard line, climaxing a 55-yard drive.

Cleveland easily had the per hand in most statistical phases of the game—but they're still paying off on the most TDs. An overheated fuse box caused the lights to go off for about a total of 20 minutes.

Borland, sought by at least eight other major league clubs, was signed by Richards after the college world series last June to a $40,000 contract. Later, Frick said, tryouts proved Borland would not be a help to the Orioles and he was pursuaded to sign a $4000 contract with Oakland of the Pacific Coast League, where he finished out the season.

Swango was given his unconditional release.

Frick said officials of the club were not involved because Richards had "kept them in the dark," but he reprimanded traveling secretary Jack Dunn and assistant general manager Art Ehlers for their "ostrich-like attitude."

Dunn, at Richards' direction, had paid Borland $6000 when he left for Oakland. Ehlers later had signed Borland's con-tract for the club.

Frick's statement said Borland was assured he would be paid the full amount of the original contract, which never was filed with the American League president for approval under baseball law.

Baltimore's defense in the matter was that there was no wrongful cover-up since the club had 20 days in which to file the contract and Richards and Borland had resclinded the contract when Borland agreed to go to Oakland, thus making him a free agent.

Frick ruled that a club has a duty to file any signed contract and has not right to rescind or destroy it. The only way a player can be made a free agent is to give him his uncon-Inter land signed Borland's contract for the club.

Clarence W. Miles, Orioles' president, did not challenge Frick's charge or action, but referred to the Borland and Swango cases as "errors of judgment" by Richards, who doubles as field manager of the club.

Miles added, however, that the errors were pardonable in view of the "great progress made under Richards . . . seven of our nine farm clubs finished in the first division . . and the Orioles certainly are a far stronger team than that which started the season."

Hear Verdiet Calmly.

Bryant and Milam accepted the verdict calmly.

When the verdict came in it was read in a shortened form, simply "Not guilty," which resulted in a few subdued cheers despite the judge's caution against any demonstration.

But Circuit Judge Curtis Swango Jr. would not accept it that way, and sent jurors back to their room to write fit right: "We the jury find the defendants not guilty." It took them five minutes.

The verdict still left unanswered the question of what happened to Till. If the body yielded up by the river was not his, then where is he? And whose body was found in the river?

Sheriff H. C. Strider of Tailahatchie county said he would continue his investigation in an attempt to identify, the body.

The issue of outside interfer ce was injected into final defense arguments yesterday in an emphatic way. "There are people in the United States who want to destroy our way of life," the jury was told. "They are not above getting a body and putting Emmett Till's ring on a finger and leaving it in a river, to focus national attention on Mississippi. "These people are not all in Chicago and Detroit. We have them in Jackson and Vicksburg and Mound Bayon—people that want to disturb our race relations."

State and defense attorneys all resorted to loud shouting in their final exhortations to the jury, with some purple patches typical of the old school of courtroor oratory.

Cheers For New Leader

Thousands of cheering, shouting residents of Buenos Aires jamming the Plaza de Mayo yesterday to hear Gen. Eduardo Lonardi deliver address after he took the oath as Argentina's provisional President. He received a tumultuous welcome as he arrived from Cordoba to take the place of ousted President Juan Peron but the warmth of the greeting was dampened later as die-hard followers of Peron staged

CONTRAST

Earphones worn by S. L. Akintola are in sharp contrast to the scar pattern on his face, relic of an ancient tribal custom. He was a Nigerian delegate to recent international conference at the University of Milan, Italy, on the outlook for liberty.

GRIEF

Dr. Sanford Marcus at bedside of his wife, Hanna, in hospital at San Francisco yesterday as police pressed the search for their infant son. The child, born last Saturday, was kidnaped from the hospital Monday. Overwhelmed with grief, Mrs. Marcus has been unable to eat and is being fed intravenously. Her doctor, alarmed at her condition, permitted this picture to be taken in the hope the sight of the grief-stricken mother might move the kidnaper to return the child.

NOBILITY ON HONEYMOON

Prince Alfonso Hohenlohe-Langenberg and his 15-year-old bride, the former Princess Virginia Ira Fuerstenberg, ready for swimming party yesterday at Sirmione in the Lake Garda district of Italy where they are spending their honeymoon. Descendants of princes of the Holy Roman Empire, they were married Wednesday at Venice in Italy's "wedding of the year."

DEATH TRAP FOR BIRDS

INDIANAPOLIS, Sept. 24 (INS)-An outbreak of encephalitis which has claimed six lives and caused the illness of six other residents of Gibson county has been traced to mosqui-

Dr. Albert Marshall, director of the communicable disease division of the Indiana board of health, said the disease resulted from a virus transmitted by squitoes from animals.

The virus affects the brain and sometimes is called sleeping sickness.

Dr. Marshall said the en-cephalitis outbreak began two weeks ago and was concentrated in Fort Branch, Ind. He said that engineers are spreading oil to kill the larvae spreading oil to kill the larvae and sprays are being used to kill mosquitoes in the area. Fogging machinery is being employed to spray Fort Branch streets and alleys with a disinfectant to eliminate both mosquitoes and bugs.

Dr. Marshall said there is no cause for alarm in the area.

Diplomatie Menu. BONN, Sept. 24 (AP)—Depu-ies who voted approval of establishing diplomatic relations with the Soviet Union yesterday found a new item on the menu of the West German Parliant's restaurant-borscht.

RED ART UGLY TO RED ARTIST PABLO PICASSO

The New York Herald Tribuns-Post-Dispatch Special Radio.

MOSCOW, Sept. 24—France's famous modern artist, Pablo Picasso, who is a famous Communist, appears to keep his artistic and ideological sentiments very far apart.

According to Carleton Smith, of the National Arts Foundation in New York, who talked with Picasso here, the artist expressed himself as follows on Russian art: "I have never seen a good Soviet painting. They are all ugly, dreary and monotonous and full of generals with medals."

NEHRU GETS ARAB STALLION AS PRESENT FROM MOSCOW

BOMBAY, India, Sept. 24
(AP)—Prime Minister Nehru received a gift from Moscow yesterday—a 4-year-old chestnut Arab stallion.
The stallion, Kolos, was presented by Moscow's permanent agricultural exhibition. In his recent Russian tour. Nehru had expressed admiration for the horses on show there.

this boy up, if he's the right kind of person, but I do think you would have more fun with boys and girls your own age, who are in your same grade at school. And, no matter how much you think you care for him, put those ideas of mariage out of your mind right now. You should be enjoying the friendship of many boys and girls in your early

Dear Martha:

I AM 15 YEARS OLD and will be a sophomore in high school. Several of my girl friends and I get together occasionally and plan a party to be held at the home of one of the group. Usually, we take turns. However, one of the girls always seems to be busy when it's her turn although she manages to go to the other parties. Our parents usually have to take her. We're pretty fed up with her. What can

First of all, are you sure that the girl can afford to entertain, or that her parents will let her? Maybe she wants very much to be in the group but can't have the girls at her home, and she may need the friendship of the others more than you realize. On the other hand, if she's just being a parasite and refusing to carry her share, you have to bring it to a head. Why not make up a definite schedule of parties and decide to entertain in alphabetical order? Then she'll know well in advance that it's her turn. Or perhaps you could pair off and let two girls go together on giving a party. Then her partner could help her plan and entertain.

IN ANSWER TO M.R.: The best thing for you to do is to stay completely away from the arguments. If they ask your opinion, say what you think, but do so in a pleasant and quiet manner that won't offend the one with whom you disagree. You might talk with your mother about this, when she is in a happy mood, and tell her how distressed you are when she and your grandmother argue. Maybe she doesn't realize how distasteful it is to you and a word from you may make her stop and think. Also, don't forget to do your own part in keeping your household as pleasant and agreeable as possible. Try not to cause any arguments between your mother and your grandmother.

How about a picnic or scavenger hunt for the erowd? Martha Carr's free leaflets will help you with your plans. Please inclose a stamped, self-

CHILDREN WHO ARE INTELLIGENT enough to want to do differently the usual routine tasks are sensitive. Their actions indicate a keen-edged nervous system, a precious possession, one that often uncovers rare gifts. Schools have to have rules and it is rules such pupils break.

The professional teacher will study the rulebreaker for his underlying idea, sympathize with him and lead him to use his energy and his ideas to the best advantage. He will not dislike the pupil, call him such names as "dope, nuisance, et cetera. He will not ask the class to side with him by asking, "Isn't he?" He will, by every means in his power, try to learn what it is that is driving the pupil, the student, to behave as he is and direct and lead him to satisfying achievement.

SCHOOL ROUTINES meet the requirements of the major number of the pupils. Any break in the routine annoys the administrators and teachers unless they accept the fact that school is for all the children, all the students and so accept the unusual, annoying child or adolescent boy or girl as normal in the situation.

A pupil may, for example, go on his own to further a eause the whole school is engaged in. He may be running a risk to himself, he may be getting in the way of the organized movement. He does not intend to be annoying. What he really is doing is trying to take the lead in the movement, be important to it. He does not merit punishment but understanding. He needs no scolding but he does need leadership. These children and youth are highly valuable in a democratic community. The teachers can help to develop their potential abilities if they will try to understand them, as some do every day.

It's not so hard to understand girls! They write in their diaries about boys who show thoughtfulness. Although a boy doesn't look a bit like Gene Kelly on the dance floor or Rock Hudson in the moonlight, he gets a "special" rating if he's thoughtful.

WHEN IT'S TIME to give your special date a birthday gift and your mind is a blank, give her mother a buzz on the telephone and ask her for tips telephone and ask her for tips on what your dream-date would really like. It's better than wondering and guessing wrong. When you order her corsage for a "formal," instead of merely asking the color of her dress, also ask her (or her mother) what kind of flowers she likes best. Only a gold-digger will reply, "Orchids."

SOMETIME when you two are chatting easually about your pet "likes" and "dislikes," find pet "likes" and "dislikes," find out what kind of flowers, candy, record, perfume, etc. she pre-fers and make a mental note for Santa-time. 'Seeding the Clouds' in Pakistan

By Eleanor Roosevelt

NEW YORK. S INCE I have started to tell you something about UNES-CO's various projects I think there is another one that will be really inter-

There are

There are places in our own country where we have experimented with "seeding the clouds," as we call it, to make rain, and some of us have followed these experiments Swith some interest. But rain is so important in the deserts of Baluchistan and Sindh, where normally only five inches of rain fall in the whole year, that a project to get whole year, that a project to get more rain there is of vital con-cern to everyone. In the Pun-iab a rainy day is one of the big events of the year.

So, with the hope of getting more rain the government of Pakistan appealed to UNESCO three years ago for a scientific mission to help them decide whether it was economically feasible to undertake "cloud feasible to undertake "cloud seeding" in some of these areas. Since then some Pakistani meteorologists and a young scientist from UNESCO have found—and have had some successful tests have had some successful tests in the Punjab—a new low-cost process for increasing rainfall by literally salting the sky.

TWO TEST REGIONS COVETing about 1500 square miles, where the experiments were held in July, August and Sep-tember of last year, showed on

Tasty Tricks

Creative cooks are now ussalads and sauces a new note. For a fish sauce blend one tablespoon chopped dill pickle and one tablespoon horseradish with yogurt to step up the flavor of sole or halibut. 50 per cent more rain had fallen in these areas than in adjoining regions through the use of small hand blowers such as the silversmiths blowers such as the silversmiths of Pakistan use in bazaars. Being manufactured locally the cost is less than $30, and with these small blowers they wafted eight tons of sait into the sky during the experiment.

Most of our "cloud seeding" aims at producing ice in the alms at producing ice in the upper parts of the clouds, but that is impractical in warm countries where rain often falls from clouds which come nowhere near the freezing level. where near the freezing level. The Pakistani meteorologists working with the UNESCO team suspected that rain in warm countries may be formed on the tiny salt particles that come from the evaporation of salt spray but nobody knew how far inland these particles penetrated.

PATIENTLY they worked for two years in various parts of Pakistan among other things taking samples of the dust in the air to determine salt con-

the rain gauges in the area that tent. Near the shore they found that there were always thousands of salt particles in each cubic meter of air. Further inland in the Punjab there was less than 10 per cent a cubic meter.

It would take too long to It would take too long to describe the mechanism that they developed but it was simple and inexpensive, and the UNESCO scientists as well as the Pakistani people feel the method has great promise for tropical countries that cannot afford the expensive large-scale "cloud seeding" experiments with aircraft.

The salting in the Punish "cloud seeding experiments with aircraft.

The salting in the Punjab for 39 days cost only $1000. The records showed daily reports from 200 rain gauges dating as far back as 1900, and it was learned that the 1954 rainfall pattern had not been equaled since 1914.

The new geophysical observatory at Quetta is now considered one of the best in Asia. The work of these Pakistani meteorologists in conjunction with the UNESCO team has already been published in international scientific journals and it is gaining for Pakistan an honored place in the science of geophysics.

Fix It Yourself By Hubbard Cobb

Damp and Leaky Basements. Wing that if there wasn't any water on the outside, there wouldn't be any leaky basements. From here it's easy to go on and say that a lot of leaky basements can be fixed by signify not allowing water. simply not allowing water down around the walls

This can be a rather easy undertaking. For example, if leaders or downspouts from the roof gutters discharge right next to the basement walls, provide them with lines to carry the water away from the house. Another trick well worth the effort is to add more earth effort is to add more earth to the area next to the basement to the area next to the basement walls. This additional fill should be graded so that it slopes rather sharply away from the basement wall for about eight feet or more. Seed this with grass and you'll find it will help considerably.

Another trick that works is to pour a concrete apron around the outside of the basement This apron can serve as k and should be about a walk and should be three feet wide. It should be tilted just enough so that water landing on it will drain away from the basement. The joint where this drive or apron joins the basement wall should be made tight with tar or a similar elastic compound.

Another way to remove surface water is to construct a face water is to construct a concrete gutter around the sides of the basement wall. A gutter of this sort should be about two feet wide and about four inches deep. It should have an outer lip about five inches wide. The gutter should be given a slight pitch so that water entering it will flow through the guter into a line running to a dry ter into a line running to a dry well or to a spot far enough from the basement so the water can't cause trouble.

Contract Bridge

By Ely Culbertson

N such a case as the following, the average declarer must hope for one of two bits of luck: (a) that the opening lead will be favorable, or (b) that this is his day to make a good guess.

he decided to look for a plan that might tell him which club to play from his own hand, the king or the jack, when that vital decision would have to be made later in the play. After only a short period of cogitation, South formed that plan. South took the first trick, led a second trump to the board and played the king of spades. When East followed suit with a low spade, South had the information he was seeking. Certainly, East would have covered the spade king with the ace if able to do so, hence it was clear that he didn't have the ace. But West, if he had held two aces, certainly would have led one of them against the slam (even if he had refrained from doubling); hence the fact that West had led a trump proved that he didn't have the other age.

that West had led a trump proved that he didn't have the other ace.
So South ruffed the spade lead, then went back to the table and led a club. East ducked without hesitating, but South put up his own club king with the utmost assurance.

Start Day With A Good Breakfast By J. Earl Smith, M.D.

W HETHER you have a "good" day or a "bad" day may depend on what you had or didn't have for breakfast. Breakfast is important to your whole day—important to the way you feel and the way your work. By breakfast time it has been 10 to 12 hours since you have eaten a meal. Even though you are sleeping your body still needs to keep operating. A well chosen breakfast helps repair body loses operating. A well chosen breakfast helps repair body loses that occur at night and furnishes food energy needed for the morning activities.

Breakfast should be planned ahead of time and as part of the whole day's meals. Breakfast should supply one-fourth to one-third of our daily food needs. This is certainly logical since we do that much or more of our day's work in the morning. Allow plenty of time so that the youngsters—and Dad too—won't have to bolt their food and run.

work have to boit their food and run.

Wise planning and the careful selection of food are well worth the effort when we realize that the boys and girls who derive the most benefit from their school experience are the their school experience are the ones who start the day well-fed. The man of the family is fed. The man of the family is alert and eager to meet the problems of his work day, and mother finds her household chores quickly accomplished, when they haven't skimped or skipped breakfast.

A proper breakfast plan includes: Fruit or friut juice, preferably orange, granefruit or ferably orange.

ferably orange, grapefruit or other citrus fruit; whole grain cereal; bread or toast, with but-cereal; bread or toast, with but-ter or margarine; eggs—at least four or five a week; at least one eight ounce glass of milk. Milk, fruit and cereal make a simple but good breakfast if an adequate amount of each food is eaten. Such a break-fast is easy to prepare, easy to serve, and can be made at-tractive and annetting. For a tractive and appetizing. For a large breakfast bacon, ham or other meat may be added. Remember that variety in the breakfast menu is as important as it is in the dinner menu, and that variety will frequently stimulate a slumping appetite.

Answer to Question 2

Until the Industrial Revolu-tion, no doubt statesmen influ-enced the world most, but since then they pale into insignifi-cance compared with men of science. All life—its very phil-osophy—has been changed by the internal combustion engine, just as it had previously been changed by steam and elec-tricity. Chemistry and biology have revolutionized medicine and lengthened life and made it more abundant. Inventors are masters of the future—even then they pale into insignifiit more abundant. Inventors are masters of the future—even masters of statesmen. States-men have often shortened life and made it less abundant.

Answer to Question 3

Answer to Question 3

Yes, although it is probably not one special gift but a combination of qualities—sympathy, love of others, self-sacrifice, tolerance of other people's opinions, firmness in decisions coupled with wisdom, knowing how to teach him to make his own decisions, stimulating creative impulses, teaching him as early as possible to assume responsibility. After all, these are the qualities that make up a well-balanced man or woman. Most of these are latent qualities and can be developed.

Detectives said they had found no trace of the killer and no motive beyond robbery and attempted rape.

Detectives described the watch as of a man's military variety. Its crystal broken and the strap missing, it had stopped apparently at 1:20 a.m. yesterday when Miss Danielson, a hospital technician, beat desperately at the killer in a vain effort to escape.

She said he knocked her to the floor of the car he had taken from her escort, Hubert Hahn, 27, and fired point-blank. The bullet pierced her left shoulder.

Miss Danielson then was thrown to the road. Her assailant drove the auto at her head, the tires grazing her face as the battered girl averted her head just in time. She then staggered a quarter of a mile to a railroad track where she told her story to a train crew.

BROKEN WATCH BABY KIDNAPER CLUE TO DENVER HUNT PRESSED IN SAN JOSE AREA

Police Spurred in Hundreds of Policemen Join Search - Two Women Report Theft of Diapers.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 24
(AP)—Hundreds of policemen, pressing a desperate search for week-old Robert Marcus, knew today only that a woman resembling the untidy, buxom blond kidnaper:

1. Is in the San Jose area,
48 miles south of San Francisco; DENVER, Sept. 24 (AP)—A broken wristwatch, its hands stopped at 1:20, spurred Denver detectives in a round-the-clock search for a crazed gunman who killed a young musician, then beat and shot his girl companion. fon.

The watch, a string of broken pearls and a spent .22 caliber bullet casing were found at the declaration scene where Joyce

3. Does not know, apparently, much about caring for a tiny infant.
Those slight clues centered the biggest search in northern California history. The baby was stolen from Mt. Zion hos-pital in San Francisco last Mon-was stolen from Mt. Zion hospital in San Francisco last Monday.

The hunt continued at other California points also with tips coming from as far east as Sacramento and as far north as Marin county. Police valuly tracked down another from Atlantic City, N.J.

Two women told San Jose police of a furtive woman who stole diapers. The latest of those rame from Mrs. Lois Freeman who saw a woman "shuffling away from the back of the house" just before she missed several diapers and two baby gowns from a clothes line. Earlier still another woman told of being asked to warm a bottle for a screaming, tiny youngster, carried into her home by a blond woman she hadn't seen before, or since.

The baby's father, Dr. Sanford Marcus, sleeplessly worried both about his new son and about the mother, Hanna, 29.

"I just want my baby," is all the mother murmured from her hospital bed. Mrs. Marcus's parents and her brother were killed in Nazi concentration camps and she was smuggled out of Germany.

The mother, refusing food, is being fed intravenously and kept under sedatives. Her physician, Dr. Louis Goldstein, said "she is in very poor condition."

Both a student nurse and a pursing suncerious camps.

'she is in very poor condition."

Both a student nurse and a nursing supervisor saw a blond woman just outside the hospital nursery minutes before the tiny baby was stolen.

COLORADO G.O.P. CHAIRMAN QUITS, DENIES TAX EVASION

DENVER, Sept. 24 (AP)— Charles A. Haskell resigned yesterday as Colorado's Republican chairman, then pleaded not guilty to a federal charge of failing to file an income tax return for 1951.
His resignation came only two days after Joseph F. Little stepped down as Democratic state chairman. Little has been hospitalized with a heart attack.

Haskell, an attorney in sub-Haskell, an attorney in sub-urban Englewood, said in his-letter of resignation that "when my case comes up for trial, I want it to be a trial of Haskell personally and not a trial of the Republican party." He had been state chairman since March 1954. A federal grand jury indicted Haskell Sept. 14, charging he failed to file a return on $43,-518 income in 1951.

HERBERT STANDING, RETIRED STAGE, SCREEN ACTOR, DIES

NEW YORK, Aug. 24 (AP)— Herbert Standing, retired screen and stage actor and member of a prominent British theatrical family, died vestermemoer of a prominent British theatrical family, died yesterday. He was 71 years old.

Standing, who arrived in the United States from England in the 1920s, was the son of Herbert Standing, one of the four brothers prominent on the English stage at the turn of the century. He was a brother of Wyndham Standing and the late Sir Guy Standing, motion picture actors.

Among the plays in which Standing appeared here were "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes," "Happy Ending," "So Was Napoleon" and "Black Limelight." His brother, Wyndham, of Los Angeles, survives.

Despite sharply reduced supplies, beef steers and heifers declined 50c@$1 for the week ended Friday, greatest decline being on steers over 1150 lbs. and on lighter cattle below choice grade. Supplies were much lighter than previous week but this was more than offset by bearish factors, including lower dressed beef trade, curtailed shipper outlet due in part to pending religious holidays, heavy waterfills, and lower prices at other major points. Only 250 loads beef steers and heifers arrived, compared with 395 loads week before—a decrease of 35 per cent. Over half of receipts comprised cows and stockers and feeders, cows alone exceeding 6500 head. Cows and bulls sold steady to 50c lower; no change stockers and feeders; vealers and calves $1 lower; over 80 per cent of slaughter steers and 65 per cent of heifers and mixed yearlings were good and choice from $20 slaughter steers and 65 per cent of heifers and mixed yearlings were good and choice from $20 @23; a dozen loads high-choice and prime, $23.25@24; bulk straight heifers, $17@20 for fed kinds. Bulk of utility and commercial cows brought $10@12, a few $12.25@12.50; canners and cutters mainly $7@9.50; utility and commercial bulls, $12@13 late; good and choice vealers $19@24; late top, $26 on prime; early top, $27. Most commercial to good heavy calves brought $13@16; a few choice, $17@18.

Compared with last Friday, hogs 200-lb. up closed 25@35c lower; 190-lb. down about steady and sows mostly steady. Supplies were slightly larger than for the previous week, but smaller than for the corresponding period a year ago. Several smaller than for the corresponding period a year ago. Several sessions saw a top of $17 on U.S. 1-2 grade 200-230-lb. averages, closing top $16.75 for one load. Bulk U.S. 1-2 and 3 grade 200-260-lb. cleared for the week at $16.35@16.75, closing sales mostly $16.35@16.80 and some U.S. 3 grade 200-210-lb. offerings, $16.25. Most 180-190-lb. averages closed at $16.016.25; 140-170-lb. $14.25@15.75, 100-130-lb., $12.25@13.75, sows under 400-lb. closed at $14.50@15.50, a few to $15.75 with 400-lb. up, $13.50@14.50. One year ago this week hog tops varied from $19.85@20.25 and sows, $18.50@19.25.

INDIVIDUAL ISSUES UP SHARPLY IN WEEK

Some Gainers in Period Are Bluest of the Blue Chips.

By ELMER C. WALZER

United Press Financial Editor. NEW YORK, Sept. 24 (UP)— Industrial stocks closed this week at a new record high, a mere 21/2 per cent under the magical 500-mark in the industrial average. Railroad issues were within one-cent of their highest level touched since Oct. 26, 1929. Sales contracted a bit but held well above 2,000,000 shares daily. It was a week marked by sharp gains in individual issues, some of them the bluest of the blue chips. The moving force which kept the market going was a series of glowing reports from industry-reports of record productry—reports of record production currently, estimates for records for all of 1955 and estimates that the boom will carry over into 1956. This meant to Wall Street, high earnings and record dividend disbursements.
One agency said the market was discounting dividends for 1956 as well as for 1955. A surge of extras or increases is anticipated in the final months of the year, a factor that is expected to produce the usual year-end stock market rally.

CHAPTER FOURTEEN.

CHAPTER FOURTEEN.

Peter Grant's kiss was a revelation. Donna had never been kissed like that before. It revealed qualities in Peter she had not suspected. Here was a man who could not be trifled with; who was capable of deep emotion and would expect an equal devotion from her. He was, Donna decided breathlessly, the most masculine man she had known. His eyes were so dark they looked black. His powerful hands gripped her shoulders yet she felt no pain. She would have fallen if he had not supported her. Her blue eyes, half closed, flew open at the triumph in his voice.

"You couldn't kiss me like

"You couldn't kiss me like at unless you loved me,"

Peter said by the unexpected caress as well as her own reaction to it. Donna struggled into her pride as if it were a discarded garment. "You took me by surprise," she said.

she said.

Peter lighted a cigarette.

"We're engaged, aren't we?

"Yes, but even so . . ."

"Even so you expect me to refrain from making love to you.

Is that what you mean?"

"Something like that," she said conscious of the weakness of her position.

said conscious of the weakness of her position.

"Are you trying to make me believe you didn't kiss Arthur?"

"That was different. We expected to be married."

"And you don't expect to marry me?" It was a statement not a question but she answered it anyway. "Please don't be angry with me, Peter. I thought it was understood that our engagement is a temporary arrangement to help us over the necessary readjustment to Arthur's marriage to Enid."

PETER tossed away his cigarette and started the car. "I doubt if such a half-baked engagement will benefit either of us, It might be wiser just to call off the whole thing."

Panic was in her eyes. Not

"You needn't worry about that either. I'm not changing my mind in six months or six years for that matter. If you don't marry me I'll be sitting on your doorstep at the age of 80. With my long gray beard fluttering in the wind, hoping you'll take pity on me."

Donna laughed feeling gayer than she ever had with Arthur. "When that happens I'll totter out and rescue you."
"Thank you, my sweet. Your generosity deserves another kiss. If you don't mind waiting for it."

for it."

"I'll wait," she said but when they were parked before her door he kissed her lightly on the forehead. Donna was disappointed. Afruid he would suspect it, she said nothing until she was safely inside the lobby of her own building.

right. Their marriage was a mistake. Enid was divorcing him and returning to New York. Donna wakened Sunday morning to the sound of rain pattering on the roof, blowing in through the open windows. The familiar pain was in her heart. How could she endure the lonely hours? She was engaged to Peter but he had not mentioned calling her.

How much did an engagement like theirs mean? How much time would he spend with her?

Resisting the impulse to call him, she rose and made toast and coffee. When the telephone rang she answered it hoping it would be Peter.

A YOUNG reader, Patsy Kirby, has written me that she, too, has seen something that looked like a flying saucer. She or another. Some reports, however, seemed to be genuine.

One section of an air force may have the duty of making tests with machines of the nature of flying saucers. Without knowing about those tests, another group of pilots may be directed to try to reach the so-called "saucers" with ordinary airplanes. making tests with machines of the nases it was flying north, near Greenville, S.C. My girl friend saw it, too. It was round and looked like a glass top.

"We saw it at about a quarter past 3 o'clock. I rain into the house and told my mother. She came out to look at it, and she said that it looked like a flying saucer. We watched it until if was gone. That happened last year."

WEILI, Patsy, you are one of hundreds of persons, who believe that they have seen flying saucers. Personally I think that actual objects (looking something like saucers) have been observed.

I have talked with a pilot who was given the special task of c he cking flying saucer stories. He said that most of the stories were explained on the basis of a mistake of one kind
